Play For Her

MIKE GILBERT playing the villian Gaylord Duckworth during

Papa party to be held

"This Is Your Life, Daddy" is the theme for this years Girls League Poppa Party. The party will be held Thursday night, March 8 in the cafeteria and gymnasium gymnasium.

The Poppa Party has been held every year for approximately seven years. It began because Girls League members wanted something to remember fathers with as well as mothers. Over the years there has been a very good response on helalf of fathers and response on behalf of fathers and daughters.

There are two chairmen for each committee but one is a Girls League council member as well. This enables the council to know about how the committees are doing. Those chairmen not on the council include Maria Warneke and Val Marpe, Decorations; Cindy Slater, Food; Debra Porter, Nametags; Sheree Bogardus, Programs and En-tertainment; Nancy Erickson, Table, Decorations, Debbia Table Decorations; Debbie McCoy and Debbie Thurman, Clean-Up; Karen Kreman and Laura Snyder, Invitations; and Karen Schmidt, Games.

The recent sale of Val-O-Grams enabled Girls League to donate approximately $25.00 to a program for buying more books for children in the U.S. On March 1st a representative from the Patricia Stevens Modeling School spoke at the Girls League assembly.

Special thanks were given to the office secretaries, Miss Jean Larson, St. Frederic School, Parents of Cast & Crew.

At the end of the play everything turns out well. Marcella Paine the old maid, busybody becomes a sweet lovable person. Dorthy Bullock the nurse finds out what a "snake" Gaylord Duckworth was, Amelia stays her spunky self. Dawson who's real name was Stephen Fenton discovers his daughter the heroine of the play, Pansy Paine. Hilary Paire makes one of the shortest appearances before an audience as he comes in talks with Marcella goes unstairs and shortest appearances before an audience as he comes in talks with Marcella goes upstairs and has a heart attack. Basil Barrington wins Midge Paine, and, also has oil come in which takes them from "rags to riches so to speak." Basil had spent Hedda Barington's, his mother, money on the oil land. Which is how he came under Gaylord Duckworth influence. Beatrice Hudnut is given another chance after "being left at the church for the second time". Fairfax Kisselberg is the manager of the cheese factory and wins Pansy Paine. In factory and wins Pansy Paine. In the end of the play Gaylord Duck-worth meets his just end as he is blown up by the time bomb meant for Fairfax Kisselbergh.

As the story goes the villian, Gaylord Duckworth, gets himself into a lot of trouble, particularly girl wise. He forces his attention upon Pansy Paine which brings Fairfax Kisselbergh down his neck. Senior "Skip Day" seems to be an institution at St. Helens, illegal or not. What really bothers me the most is the way some of the students get away with it, while others are punished.

According to the administration law and order in school is the same as law and order in the community, and is treated as such. Laws are set up for the benefit of all, and should be followed by everyone. Rules in school are the same and they are generally made for a purpose, and are not made just to be broken.

The whose for attending school state that each student must

The rules for attending school, state that each student must attend school on a regular basis, unless attendance is hampered by illness or illness in the family. They do not state that a student may skip school, even on an organized basis.

Students who skip school must suffer the consequences if they are caught. The punishment set up at SHSHS for skipping school the first time is an in-school suspension for half a day, the second time a student must bring his parents with him and he may be suspended from two to three days. The third time he is caught for skipping he will be suspended for a week.

Those students who were honest about skipping on "Senior Skip Day" had to suffer the consequences, which included a one day suspension and an unexcused absence. The others who skipped, but hed their parents approach for what they did did not have any but had their parents approval for what they did, did not have any problems so far as suspension because they were granted an excused absence.

I personally admire the kids who were honest and I tend to look down on the kids who were dishonest. Is this justice to let some get away with something and not to let others? The same thing happens everyday in the community. There are a handful of dishonest people, but the honest people outnumber them ten to
